Adhesives Specialist Panacol Receives ÖKOPROFIT® Award

Panacol-Elosol GmbH receives local award for effective union of environmental and commercial approaches

A subsidiary of the Hönle Group since the beginning of 2008, German adhesives specialist Panacol has again received the ÖKOPROFIT® award. ÖKOPROFIT® is a regional project for integrated environmental engineering that aims to unite environmental and commercial issues. Supported by external experts, companies develop practical measures that are then implemented within the business. The aim is to reduce environmental pollution while at the same time cutting operating costs. One of the enterprises that has again achieved this balancing act is Panacol. "We are pleased that we were again able to pay a small contribution to environmental protection", says Panacol's Managing Director Achim Battermann. "And that the changes also mean more profit for us is, of course, a positive side-effect." Panacol-Elosol GmbH will also participate in this environmental project next year.
